COLFAX, Ia., Aug. 15.—The South Seas are beckoning James Norman black sands, luxurious vegetation and Iowa's vagrant author, famous from his war books, "Kitchener's Mob," and "High Adventure," who has spent the last eighteen months roaming between Tahiti and the Marquests islands in the eastern oceans, is now visiting his parthe next three months.

logging around with his companion. harles Nordhoff, Hall has completed a set of articles on the "Faery Islands of Seas," which have been published in an eastern magazine and will appear in book form next winter.

The famous chronicler of the Lafayette Escadrille, who joiner "Kitchener's Mob" in 1914, has journeyed more than 7,000 miles in the last year within the islands. His next trip will be to Rapa lti, a rarely visited islet 500 miles south of Tahiti, down next to the equator.

"The romance and charm of the is lands is justified," Hall declares. "The bright blue skies make them beautiful. "The natives are fine, broad-shouldered, splendid specimens. The women are not, perhaps, as beautiful as they are represented in fiction.

"Often my companion and I stay for weeks on a tiny atoll-a little, low iseuts here, but the romantic charm of the land with cocoanut trees surrounding palmy isles will draw him back within a lagoon, not more than three feet above the ocean.

"One finds romance everywhere." The debonair author is unmarriedbut he's returning to the South Seas.
